Politicians controlling Ashram Schools

Tribal and marginalized communities located in hilly, remote areas tend to have meager infra-structural facilities not only because of terrain but also because of the higher per capita costs involved in providing basic infrastructure to small and scattered populations. This also applies to education and the provision of schools and teachers to tribal villages / hamlets. It is in this context that the concept of residential schools or Ashram Shalas assumes tremendous significance. Children from remote locations can get access to education in these schools.

It is not enough to adopt a policy of providing livelihoods to tribal families through job reservations. It is necessary to raise their educational level so that the jobs are not monopolized by the relatively prosperous sections within the tribal community who can afford better education. The poorer tribal households must be given access to quality education. It therefore becomes necessary to ensure and monitor the quality of facilities and education being given in the Ashram Shalas managed / aided by the Government.

There are 917 Ashram Shalas for tribal students of which 410 are run by the government and 507 schools are run by non-governmental organizations with assistance from the government. The total assistance/subsidy during 2001-2002 was Rs. 39.8 crores or 381 million.

The NGOs running Ashram Shalas receive a maintenance grant of Rs.335/- p.m. per child which has recently been increased to Rs.500/-. In addition, expenditure on teachers and staff is borne by the government. Assistance from government is also given for books, stationery, medical expenses, clothing and for rent of the building. For example, a primary school of 200 students receives an annual grant of more than Rs. 20,00,000 (twenty lakhs) as indicated in Annexure A. The average subsidy per student is more than Rs. 10,000. The assistance for larger schools and the rates of subsidy for high schools is higher.

Since large grants are given, we have to ensure that Ashram Shalas give the poor access to education and do not degenerate into business ventures managed by the local elite for attracting government funds.

In view of the general complaints regarding these schools and the hesitation of staff to do a detail inspection of the schools, it was decided to obtain data regarding the politicians who were chairman, secretaries or trustees of the NGOs running the aided Ashram Shalas. The Tribal Development Department was requested to provide this information. The information started trickling in after officials were threatened with prosecution for not providing information. Out of 507 aided Ashram Shalas the information in respect of 484 has been received.

Out of 484 Ashram Shalas for which information has been received it was found that 270 schools (56%) had an element of political control as indicated in the table below.

Table A

Total no. of aided schools for which information is received	Total no. of aided schools in which NGO has politicians	Percentage
484	270	55.79%

Similarly the proportion of funding for aided Ashram Shalas that went to politically controlled schools was to the extent of 63% as indicated below.

Table B

RECOMMENDATIONS

1) This Institute has been attempting to do some sample checking of student strength in some Ashram Shalas of Gadchiroli district since inflation of the number of students has been a common method of obtaining higher government assistance. During this exercise it was learnt that team members were frightened to do the checking because of the linkage between school management and political authority.

One team from this institute that visited nine schools in Gadchiroli district detected 86 bogus students entered in the school records. Some names of students were falsely maintained in the rolls for two years without the student attending the school. The names of these bogus students are attached as Annexure B1.

The stand of the department is that subsidy/grants are released on the basis of student strength found by inspectors of the department or project office and therefore bogus students would not affect the grant to be paid. However in reality the issue is more complicated and it is not possible to say whether or not the schools received grants for these bogus students. This is because of the faulty inspection procedure followed by the department which does not identify bogus students. And inspecting officers tend not visit each class to check the presence of bogus students but continue to rely on the school records. That would also explain why bogus names are still entered. Please see paragraph 2 below.

It is therefore very necessary to free these schools from political control in order to be able to inspect and monitor them properly and without fear. Unless the monitoring is effective the schools will not improve. It is also unwise to give politicians or bureaucrats direct funding as it would facilitate abuse of power since organizations with politicians would receive the funds and the politicians would also be able to influence the department/agency which is entrusted with inspecting the use of these funds. It is therefore recommended that organizations with politicians could be given permission to start/run schools but should not be given subsidy.

2) Departmental officials checking the attendance in the schools do not record the result of the checking on the muster roll of each class but enter the total school attendance in the visit book. Hence it is not clear whether the inspecting officer has checked the attendance in each class in the presence of all the students in order to detect the bogus students or just recorded the figure given by the head master in order to show an inspection on paper. Therefore the result of checking should be recorded in the muster roll of each class. If this is done the subsequent inspection could be a tool for verification of the manner of inspection done earlier. For example, if the first inspection revealed no bogus names and the second one does it would mean the first inspection was not proper.

(3) Schools should be rotated amongst inspecting officers, especially in view of the observation made above.

(4) Officials of other departments should be allowed to inspect schools when on tour in the area. These need not be detail inspections of all classes. A sample inspection of even one class would suffice.

5) Other aspects like medical coverage, conditions of toilets, availability of items like soap, books etc. are not checked by inspecting officers. Out of five schools checked, two did not have toilets.
